A Divided GHI Board Relents, Gives OK for Heat Conversion on Single Plants

by Mary Lou Williamson

Given the increasing priority of conversion of the heating plants, the Greenbelt Homes, Inc., Board of Directors took a new tack at its regular meeting last Thursday, April 24. Members on a single heating plant may now decide to convert to a new heating system on their own and expect to get support from the board. In addition, for those members who would need financing, some funds will be available from the Maryland Housing Rehabilitation Program (MHRP). (The heating conversion is expected to be financed through city revenue bonds, but arrangements are still several months off.)

Residents of one row of homes, A-H, in the 11 Court of Ridge Road received permission to begin immediately to convert their eight units to electric baseboard heat. The group has had its request before the board for several months. Up to now both board and management had opposed allowing further conversions until the membership vote, scheduled for May 28. The board is still deeply divided, but this time one member, Jim Smith, changed his vote from "no" to "yes."

Smith argued that "GHI is in a different posture now..." He felt there is "an advantage to using individual conversion." He agreed with Director Virginia Moryadas that "the board does have the authority to make the decision. We're in a permissive posture now. It makes more sense to have people (converting their heating plants) on their own."

Director Wayne Williams found it hard to buy Smith's change of position. "If we, as a board, go ahead and make the decision now, after saying we need a membership vote—it's a joke!" A membership vote is still needed for a change in corporate policy, Smith explained, but the board can approve a special exception.

MHRP

Anxious to begin the conversion immediately, director Ed James was concerned about trying to start up a program with another governmental agency, MHRP, fearing delays similar to those experienced with HUD.

GVFD & RS 608-78

This Saturday the Fire Department will begin its Annual Fund Raising Drive and will be delivering to residents applications for membership to the Greenbelt Volunteer Fire Department and Rescue Squad Ambulance Club. Please fill out the required information and return it in the attached envelope. Remember that this is a community effort. Everyone should do his/her part. Please, don't forget the Greenbelt Volunteer Fire Department. Help us to help you.

General manager Ken Kopstein felt that was unlikely. MHRP has offered funds for 25 to 50 units as of July 1 and an additional 100 to 150 units later. They do not have extensive rules and procedures as does HUD. Kopstein felt the program could be initiated more quickly under this type of financing than with any other. Individuals would apply for up to $5,000 per unit from MHRP through the city's loan processor. Because the conversion of the heating plant would not require all of the $5,000, other items, such as major appliances, could be included under the loan.

Interest rates on MHRP loans would be 7½ to 9½ percent, depending on the bond market at the time, but would be cheaper than city revenue bonds, according to Kopstein. While there is an upper income limit, he reported, "it is quite a bit more lenient than (similar) federal programs." For example, the upper limit for a one-person household is now $21,000, with upward revision of the figures now underway. He said 80 to 90 percent of the members in GHI would fall within the limit, more than the number of loan units available. A lottery might be necessary.

The Vote

A final effort to head off approval of using MHRP before members vote on heating conversion fell on a 5 to 4 vote. The next vote, approving the original motion offered by Smith, followed with the same line-up. Those favoring membership vote before conversion of any more heating plants were: James, Williams, Bobbi McCarthy, and Jim Foster. Those who favored immediate conversions (requiring board approval, but not membership approval) were Smith, Moryadas, Don Volk, Norm Weyel, and Margaret Hogensen.

GHI Inaugurates 2nd Solar Project

Solar panels for hot water only will be installed on the roof of one row of homes in the 14 court of Ridge Road. GHI members and the entire community are invited to ribbon cutting ceremonies on Friday, May 2 at 1 p.m.

Funding for the project comes partly from a grant from the Department of Housing and Urban Development. This is GHI's second solar experiment; the first is in the 2 court of Southway in which GHI worked with NASA to install the collectors.

The new collectors are Sunbalt flat plate solar units and are similar to the Southway collectors. Construction of the system is expected to be completed by August 1. GHI's two solar experiments enable the cooperative to serve as a model for other communities, especially those with multi-family housing, who are interested in the new technology.

version was easier—only Williams dissented, and McCarthy abstained.

Townhouse Rezoning Asked For Smith-Ewing Property

by Leta Mach

According to George Brugger, attorney for owners Alfred H. Smith and Frank M. Ewing, rezoning the remaining Smith-Ewing property in the Greenbriar Triangle R-T (townhouse - up to 10 units an acre) would be "a positive benefit to the area." During March a petition was filed to rezone those 24 1/3 acres R-T from the present R-55 (single family - average 4.6 units per acre) zone.

The property lies adjacent to Eleanor Roosevelt Senior High School (ERHS) and East of Mandan Road. To the north is undeveloped city land (park). Nearby developments consist of the Glen Oaks rental apartments and Greenbriar condominium apartments. Across Greenbelt Road, the townhouse community of Windsor Green is being built.

The applicants feel townhouse construction is the most logical use for the property. The reasons the applicants give for townhouse development include the tract's location near the high school; Greenbriar, Glen Oaks and Windsor Green developments; and heavily travelled Greenbelt Road. In the rezoning application they state "the intensity and magnitude of surrounding developments strongly mitigates against development of a small isolated enclave of single family homes in this location."

The applicants feel that only minor changes would result in changing the zone to R-T from R-55. The number of extra dwelling units built would be "a relatively small amount" above the number permitted under the present zoning, they claim. In their opinion, the change would "have no detrimental impact on the school system because the additional units would be townhouses which tend to generate a smaller yield per unit than do single-family homes." In addition, the owners feel that because of the compact nature of R-T development the burden on fire and police services would be less. As far as the effect on the road system, the applicants find them "fully adequate to handle the relatively small amount of traffic which might be caused by the zoning change." The applicants note plans for future improvements to the Kenilworth-Greenbelt Road intersection, "the only intersection generally considered to have significant congestion problems in the area of the subject property." However, they anticipate that traffic would probably use the Baltimore-Washington Parkway, the Beltway, Mandan Road and Hanover Parkway more often.

Originally the property was comprehensively zoned R-R (rural-residential). During the 1960's scattered single-family homes were built on the mostly vacant and wooded land. However, the applicants note later that R-18 (garden apartments - 20 units per acre), R-30 (garden apartments - 14 units per acre), R-T and commercial rezoning and development occurred in the area. Nearby roads such as the Beltway have been built or rebuilt such as Greenbelt Road and the Baltimore-Washington Parkway. ERHS has been constructed and Goddard Space Flight Center expanded. In the application, attention was also called to the construction of Greenway Shopping Center and the 16-story Maryland Trade Center office building. "It is readily apparent that there has been a substantial change in the character of the neighborhood which would justify a change in zoning to a more intense zone for the subject property," feel the owners.

Police Week Display At Beltway Plaza

The Greenbelt Police Department and the Merchants Association of Beltway Plaza Shopping Center are sponsoring the third annual Police Week program from May 6 through May 10 at Beltway Plaza Shopping Center. The program is held to celebrate Law Day, May 1, National Crime Prevention Week, May 4-May 10, and National Police Week, May 11-17. There are 15 organizations participating. The program will consist of vehicles and various equipment displays and will be on view to the public from 10 a.m. to 9:30 p.m. each day.

Featured also will be police dogs sniffing out drugs, and demonstration by police helicopters and the department's safety robot.

Ride-A-Bike For the Retarded Sunday

Mayor Gil Weidenfeld has proclaimed this Sunday "RIDE-A-BIKE FOR THE RETARDED DAY" in Greenbelt. He will open the Greenbelt Route at 11 a.m. at the Youth Center, joining the first group of riders to take off on the 10 mile route through the city and the Research Farm. The city councilmen are also supporting the project with pledges from community organizations. Rain date will be Sunday, May 18.

Several 100 mile riders have signed up for the Greenbelt route. Riders are reminded of the special award to the elementary student and the junior/senior high student who bring in the most money in pledges and the ones who ride the most miles.

Coca Cola soft drink company is offering Mellow Yellow drinks to all participating in the event at the opening of the route and the National Guard is supplying water at the turn-around point in the Research Farm.

Pledge forms are still available at the Youth Center, the schools and the library. Additional information can be had by calling Eileen Labukas, 474-9486; Leo Davis, 474-9125; Winnie Phibbs, 474-4C31; Eleanor Knight, 474-

"It Can Happen"

To the Editor:

Last week my girlfriend was raped. She had left for work at her usual time in the morning but noticed she was nearly out of gas. Maybe she could make it. On her way home that evening she hoped she would make it to her usual station. This had happened before. But she had pressed her luck a little too far this time.

She ran out of gas on the Beltway. She waited for a while, a very short while, for a policeman, just as we've all been told to do. But a friendly man stopped and offered his assistance. My girlfriend is a very intelligent, modern lady. She has probably read more literature on our modern social problems than most of us. And she was aware of the probabilities of being a victim in a difficult, unpleasant, possibly dangerous circumstance. But she did (and remarkably 'ill does) love life and society; and, basically, she trusts people.

She accepted the ride to a gas station. After all, it was still daylight. She bought a gallon of gas. She and her escort started the return trip to her car. But she never made it back to her car. She was assaulted while in her escort's car. Later, the police said the man had been previously accused of rape but had never been convicted. However, with the information my girlfriend gave them, the police were anticipating a strong conviction, one that would take this man off the streets. . . .

But she is very angry now, angry because she feels afraid to accept assistance from another human being; she feels inhibited from taking a solitary walk at night; enjoying a night downtown with women friends; afraid to accept a genuinely friendly offer for a last cup of coffee before the sunrise ends a fun night out. She prays she will not allow herself to become "paranoid," mistrusting and misjudging everyone; but she feels she may never be as carefree as we who know her love so much.

She has called many of her friends and relatives; warning us to be aware—not to frighten us—but to help us remember it can happen. And she asked that we remind others whom we know and care for. So from my friend: Take care.

GREENBELT POLICE GET STATE FUNDS

Greenbelt will be receiving an additional $14,760 annually under a new state aid for police protection formula co-sponsored by state Senator Edward T. Conroy (Dem-P.G. Co.). The bill passed both the Senate and the House.

Prince Georges County will receive an additional $820,015 in total aid, with $81,590 being distributed to 22 qualifying municipalities. The formula provides Greenbelt with a $14,760 portion of that municipal share.

"Greenbelt's police force is well deserving of additional state aid," said Conroy. "Greenbelt has maintained an exceptionally low crime rate for an urbanizing area. On a state level, we have an obligation to do all we can to see that Greenbelt receives the fiscal support it needs to maintain its fine record."

As in years past, the Department is conducting an Annual Fund Raising Drive. Through the years, as your money got tighter and tighter, so did ours. ## Council Receives Reports From Its Planning Board

by Leta Mach

The Advisory Planning Board (APB) has submitted three reports to council. These reports considered site plans for the Golden Triangle and the rezoning petition for 24½ acres of Smith-Ewing property near Eleanor Roosevelt Senior High School.

APB recommended that the request to rezone the Smith-Ewing property from R-55 (single family detached) to R-T (townhouse) be denied. "A demonstrated historical and current demand for single family homes exists in Greenbelt," according to the report. Furthermore, APB found no fault in the Master Plan designation of R-55 for the property. (See story on front page.)

On another matter, APB recommended approval of the site plan for a five-story 62,000 square foot office building on the Golden Triangle. Located on the corner of Greenbelt Road and Walker Drive the building will be headquarters for the Kenneth H. Michael Companies.

The APB recommendation for approval is subject to the removal of a driveway entrance onto Greenbelt Road from the property and extra evergreen plantings along Greenbelt Road and Walker Drive to help screen the parking lots. Further, APB advised that there be a coordinated architectural theme for the Golden Triangle.

Council will consider these reports next Monday. The subject of the final APB report has already been considered by council. That is the site plan for the PEPCO substation on the Golden Triangle.

In its report, APB recommended that the site plan be approved. It added that the building be coordinated in style with other Triangle buildings. Also APB did not feel that doors, windows and lights were necessary, but that the building should be screened from Greenbelt Road.

However, council prefers that doors, windows and lights be provided for the building along with additional screening. At its April 21 session, council moved to send another letter to PEPCO about the substation. Except for the reference to doors, windows and

Do you ever wonder who the people are who receive random phone calls - the kind that win money or are polled on important questions? Well, we've never been in that category, but a few weeks ago the phone rang. A burly accented voice announced that he was a Scottish soldier stationed in Northern Ireland and that he and his buddy were guarding a telephone exchange. To while away the time they had dialed a U.S. number at random and reached us. Finding that my daughter has a sympathetic ear, they phoned us on numerous occasions; it was not unusual for the Punchin' household to be in overseas connection several times a day. The calls have stopped now. Either the boys have been transferred or their phone adventures were discovered and discouraged. We kind of miss them. Now wouldn't it be nice if we received one of those money winning calls!

Traffic was standing still on the Beltway. We turned on our CB to catch the rumors. You usually don't get very accurate information, but the rumors are more interesting anyway. This time we heard that a woman was being restrained from jumping off an overpass at New Hampshire Avenue. A voice said that she was just hanging there. Another stated that her husband was trying to hold her back. Somebody else said her husband was pushing her. A number of other fascinating embellishments appeared on the air waves. We finally escaped from the traffic jam. The next morning we read in the newspaper that a teen-aged boy had run off into the woods after apparently contemplating a jump off a Beltway bridge. We hope the youth has found a safer way to handle his problems. But somehow he seems less real to us than the imaginary woman hanging from the overpass.

Calico is gone from us. We thought our little cat was asleep but finally realized that life had departed from our little bundle of fur. A couple of close friends arrived to comfort us. A piano tuner came to keep his appointment to work on our instrument. Things began to get a little chaotic. In the midst of the confusion, in walked unexpected company. Even mourners have to eat. A big pot of spaghetti was cooked and everybody sat down at the table, including the piano tuner. Between forkfuls of pasta the members of the family looked at each other and alternately laughed and cried. And if you promise not to tell anyone, I will admit that my eyes are just a little bit damp as I am writing this.

Policy Changed At P.G. Animal Shelter

by Will Scheltema

"Ahhh, it's a dog's life," you say. But in this case, it's a dog's death.

On April 8, area resident Carl Arcaro turned in a lost dog to the Prince Georges County animal control facility in Forestville. When he was turning the dog over to authorities there, he saw a poster with a picture of a dog that was very similar to the stray he was turning in.

Arcaro called Sam Abutaleb, a student at the University of Maryland, the name listed on the poster. When Abutaleb called the shelter, immediately after receiving Arcaro's call, he was told that the animal was already dead.

He rushed to the center, arriving ten minutes before the 4 p.m. closing time. "They (the employees) thought it was a joke. They weren't going to let me in, so I left."

Abutaleb then contacted a friend, former Greenbelt City Council member Elizabeth Maf-fay. She called Daniel Yeeles, head of the animal control center, who said that he would try to isolate the dog. Yeeles later denied saying this.

The next day, Abutaleb went to the center, where he was given a mask and a pair of gloves and taken to the freezer where the dead animals were kept. At first, Abutaleb couldn't bear going through all the carcasses, but he returned and spent an hour and a half looking unsuccessfully through fifteen barrels of dead animals for his beloved Chico.

As a result of this incident, William Gullet, director of the county's Department of Licenses and Permits, has ordered the shelter to hold all dogs for at least three days unless the person bringing the dog in can produce tags or papers proving ownership. Previous shelter policy regarding ownership had been that anyone possessing the animal for 72 hours was the owner. Dogs brought in by owners could be destroyed immediately; strays were held at least 72 hours.

Gullett called the incident "unfortunate," and said that he would take appropriate personnel actions. In addition, the center is being sued by the Bowie chapter of the Society for Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, because of alleged conditions at the center.

County Executive Lawrence Hogan has proposed that the facility be leased to a private or-

GREENBELT NEWS REVIEW Thursday, May 1, 1980

The board unanimously approved the low bid of Terminix International, Inc., to treat the 318 brick homes for termites. According to staff engineer Ove Kongsted, about 75 percent of the brick homes inspected last fall had termite damage, leading to the speculation that 75 percent of all homes would also be likely to have damage. The company offers a five-year guarantee.

The board also took the following actions:

—approved (subject to review by GHI's attorney) city plans for reconstruction of parts of Hillside and Research Roads and construction of a pedestrian underpass under Hillside, these projects to be financed under a Community Development Block Grant;

—blocked further use of sand-blasting on brick units following advice from Maryland Historical Trust that bricks will deteriorate more rapidly after the hard-glazed surface has been removed;

—approved staff recommendation to shut down heating plants on May 1 to save oil;

—approved an addendum to the Mutual Ownership contract to permit individual members to pay their own individual electric heating bills following conversion to an individual system;

—directed staff to prepare statement of GHI position in opposition to townhouse zoning for parcels 3 and 4;

—approved a $50 contribution to the Greenbelt Cultural Arts Center;

—accepted a petition brought by Charles Kramer on behalf of members asking that their motion on heat conversion be placed on the agenda for the special membership meeting.

Ground-Breaking Ceremonies For Maryland Trade Center

by Will Scheltema

Groundbreaking — and snowbreaking — ceremonies were held on March 13 for the Maryland Trade Center, which will be the tallest building on the Beltway upon completion in the summer of 1981.

County Executive Lawrence Hogan braved the inclement weather to attend the ceremonies marking the beginning of construction of the 200,000 square foot building.

Fred Williams, president of developers Coakley & Williams, said, "We have selected Prince Georges County for our new building because of the favorable business climate that now prevails in Prince Georges County."

Neil Coakley, Coakley and Williams board chairman, was just as enthusiastic about the new project. "The recent tax reduction proposal is another example of the County's forward-looking policy and can only result in a greater tax benefit to the County."

He also lauded the County's 'fast track' system for handling permits that help developers build with less delay.

The 16-story building will have a contemporary solar bronze glass exterior, wall-to-wall carpeting, custom designed offices, ample secure parking and easy access to two Metro stops and the Beltway as well as the Beltway train station.

The trade center will be adjacent to the new Greenway Shopping Center, which will include four restaurants and approximately 40 stores. There will also be a health and athletics center nearby with 14 racquet ball courts, an indoor swimming pool, two gymnasiums, and an indoor running track.

Council Explores Recreation Dept. Budget at Work Session

by Hally Ahearn

The typewriter held together by "spit and American ingenuity," the truck that "went kaput," and the tables and chairs that have been around "since before the Youth Center was built" are some of the items that probably will be replaced in FY1980-81 by the Recreation Department. And Mayor Pro-tem Richard Pilski is delighted that revenue-sharing funds will provide for the purchase of a special ballpark maintenance tractor. But Recreation Department Head Hank Irving's request for a professional program assistant has not been included in the department's budget.

In a work session Monday night with City Manager James K. Giese, City Council, Hank Irving, and George Smith, head of the Department of Public Works, Giese proclaimed that the 1980-81 Recreation Department budget "reflects trying to fund the existing level, with some capital expenditures. There are no changes in personnel proposed."

The position Irving did not get was for a person to teach and coordinate arts, crafts, and creative arts programs, and to expand these programs, perhaps in cooperation with other recreation departments. Councilman Richard Castaldi predicts "more activities and usage coming into recreation programs" as family finances tighten under the current recession. The city manager's budgetary policy, however, reflects the same concern for tightening finances. "If I hadn't taken the position that I was not going to fund anything new, I would have considered it," he said of the proposed position.

Ron Ott, chairman of the Parks and Recreation Advisory Board (PRAB), reported PRAB's approval of a hold-the-line budget, adding that, as always, the board would like to push for more park maintenance. In response, Smith reported his staff has a continuing program of erosion control. The new bridge at the east end of the lake is designed and will be built this year. In addition, he confirmed, work continues on water drainage problems in the park. The lake path surface has been improved and erosion is being stabilized in the area.

Band Stand

Money to replace the park bandstand was not set aside in the capital expenditures budget because the extent of its deterioration was not known when the budget was prepared. The bandstand, constructed by Buddy Attick from old beams from the old public works building, is rotting from the inside and will have to be completely replaced. The city is looking into replacement possibilities before the outdoor concert series gets into full swing.

Other projects slated for the coming year are resurfacing of the Braden Field tennis courts, construction of a new playground on Gardenway to replace the one lost to construction of Green Ridge House, installation of carpeting in the Youth Center and other maintenance projects in the YC and SHL Center neglected for the Police Department renovation, and possible installation of air conditioning in the SHL Clubhouse.

The Recreation Department also hopes to purchase new skates for its roller skating program from funds generated by the program. The program "had a very good year," said Assistant Recreation Director Harry James. Castaldi reflected that roller skating was a "very popular program" when he was growing up in Greenbelt.

And Irving reported that despite the firing of two of the sandblasting subcontractors, he is predicting that the pool will open on time, with all refurbishing completed.

Police Blotter

A local juvenile female reported that while hitchhiking on East-West Highway, she was picked up and taken into the District of Columbia where she was raped, and then brought to Greenbelt. The case is under investigation.

A local resident, observing two persons tampering with a motor vehicle, attempted to apprehend them and one of the individuals cut the resident on the left wrist with a knife, inflicting a one inch cut. Residents are cautioned to call the police rather than attempt to interfere.

An altercation arose when a sidewalk was blocked by a truck delivering furniture. A non-resident was assaulted with a knife. No injury was sustained. Warrants were advised.

Pfc Fred E. Murray responded to a complaint on Hillside Road. He found two resident males, an adult and a juvenile acting in a disorderly manner. When questioned by the officer, the adult struck him, and attempted to flee. He was charged with disorderly conduct, assault and battery and resisting arrest. The juvenile was charged with disorderly conduct and carrying a concealed deadly weapon (knife).

An attempted burglary occurred in the 6100 block of
